Jane believes that you will be entertained and possibly inspired with her program. Jane will be sharing her international travel odyssey with stories and pictures that may well inspire all of us to reach for our passports and rolling luggage.

Jane will give a description of the twelve different volunteer projects that she completed within one year and present the local resources that she used to plan her adventure. She will also reveal tips and information that can transform your next trip into a safe and effortless international travel adventure that makes a difference to you and the world at large.

She has a Masters Degree in Animal Science; she has worked primarily in the non-profit sector. She has been an active volunteer at the local and national level including food banks, recording for the blind, therapeutic horseback riding, and has performed at the Arvada Center.

In addition to her presentations, through her business, Where Is She Heading, Jane teaches classes on volunteer vacations at Arapahoe and Front Range Colleges and Colorado Free University.
